ITEM 13.1 NOTICE OF MOTION - CR JAGO - CREATNG ALL-ELECTRIC HOMES AND BUSINESSES IN CANADA BAY LGA

RESOLVED 230/23

Moved: Cr Jago

Seconded: Cr Cordaro

That:

1. Council note:

- (a) "Natural" gas is a fossil fuel which can significantly degrade human health, especially indoors in gas heating or gas cooking. The literature on health issues and other risks related to the use of gas include:
 - (i) An Australian study published in the Medical Journal of Australia (1) found that gas cooktops are associated with around 12 per cent of childhood asthma in Australia.
 - (ii) According to Doctors for the Environment Australia, the most serious complication of burning gas indoors arises from carbon monoxide poisoning (2), which can cause fatigue, headaches, nausea, confusion, shortness of breath, chest pain and death. Longer-term exposure at lower levels can also lead to significant illness. Carbon monoxide poisoning is the leading cause of accidental poisoning worldwide (3), with the actual extent far higher than actually diagnosed (4).
 - (iii) Burning of gas produces oxides of nitrogen (and specifically NO₂) cause airway constriction and sensitisation to allergens (5). Short-term exposure to NO₂ may be associated with cardiovascular effects and premature mortality and that long-term exposure may be associated with cardiovascular effects, diabetes, poorer birth outcomes, premature mortality, and cancer (6) (with some qualifications regarding those effects).
 - (iv) In addition, US researchers from Stanford University have linked gas stoves and ovens to carcinogenic chemicals like benzene (7). Long-term exposure to benzene is linked to acute lymphocytic leukaemia, chronic lymphocytic leukaemia, multiple myeloma, childhood leukaemia and non-Hodgkins lymphoma (8).
 - (v) Gas appliances create a risk of fires.
 - (b) The Australian Capital Territory and Victoria have now introduced new planning rules which require new developments (both residential and non-residential) to be all-electric and have set dates to phase out their gas supply networks. In the USA, similar measures have been passed so far in New York State and 50 municipalities in California, including San Jose, Berkeley and San Francisco. Likewise, Holland and Denmark also are banning many connections of new developments to the gas network. In addition, the UK is phasing out new gas boilers for home heating.
 - (c) In addition, a number of councils in NSW and Victoria have made recent decisions to replace gas with electricity in new developments on health grounds (not covering existing dwellings). Specifically:

- (i) In December 2022, Waverley Council implemented a new DCP which requires electric stoves, cooktops and heaters (not gas) to be installed in new residential development.
 - (ii) Parramatta Council recently implemented new planning rules that require new developments (both residential and non-residential) in its city centre to be all-electric. They are currently considering further changes to require all new non-residential buildings to be all-electric.
 - (iii) The City of Sydney has recently agreed to investigate amending their planning controls to require all new residential developments to be all electric, with a report back to councillors as soon as possible.
 - (iv) The City of Canterbury Bankstown Council has introduced plans to ban gas in a precinct of new apartments.
 - (v) Melbourne City Council has introduced plans to ban gas in new apartments.
2. Council staff prepare a report on options for updating Council's planning documents to ban gas installations and appliances in all new residential and commercial developments, to address the range of issues arising in implementing this direction, and to identify possible further measures to reduce the prevalence of gas installations in buildings.
